

PCD The Destructive Nature

“Relevant”, “practical” and “the best seminar I have ever taken” are the typical comments from participants of the Power and Control series of seminars taught by Norm and Neva Quantz.

Power and Control: The Destructive Nature is the first in the new series of three core seminars that will bring you face to face with how to take ownership of your own power and control without abusing or being abused.

Grasping these little known and often misunderstood aspects of relationships will spur you to see life from a more realistic and truthful perspective in order to give your relationships the best chance of flourishing.

Manipulation, bullying and high handed abuse continue to erode the foundations of relationships in families, marriages, businesses and churches. Looking at relationships through a “power and control perspective” will resolve many of the unanswered questions about why some relationships fail while others succeed; what healthy relationships are about; and what to do about yours.

Whether you are looking to enrich your relationships, want clarity on whether to wind down a relationship or just want to know what makes relationships tick, this seminar will provide the insight and guidance needed to get to the core issues. You will learn about the power cycle, the 4 stages of a marriage, the power of victims and abusers and dozens of other key principles many illustrated in practical diagram format to easily grasp the concept.

In a world filled with quick fixes based on superficial insight that, at best, has short term benefits, this seminar can start you on the most fulfilling journey of your entire life. Are you ready for it? We are ready for you!
